The terms and conditions and agreements in the media contract remain valid until the end of the calendar year, unless otherwise agreed in writing.

4. Advertisement products

Online video

We offer the following video formats: pre-roll, mid-roll and bumper ad. Pre-roll ads play before the content starts. Mid-roll ads play between the content. Bumper ads are short ads that are up to 6 seconds long.

- Delivery: We strive to deliver campaigns evenly until the end date. To ensure full delivery, we reserve the right to adjust settings to optimize the campaign. Please note that some unevenness in delivery may occur due to various factors, such as weather, viewing behavior in the evenings, live broadcasts or new popular programs on streaming services. No guarantee is given for complete delivery.
- Hierarchy: Ad Alliance maintains a hierarchy in processing campaigns, prioritizing campaigns purchased with the most expensive package. Within the same package, media contract customers are given priority over customers without a contract.
- Spot length: The minimum length of content is 5 seconds and the maximum length is 30 seconds, unless otherwise agreed by Ad Alliance. The use of multiple spots is not possible.

The Publisher Partner YouTube allows a maximum spot length of 20 seconds, unless otherwise agreed and equipped with a skip button.

- Tag-on: A tag-on campaign, which is a short ad that airs immediately after the primary ad, is not allowed.
- Publisher Exclusion: A maximum of one Publisher per purchase package as stated in the rate card may be excluded at an index of 125. With the Ad Alliance network package, spot lengths longer than 20 seconds automatically have an index of 125 due to the exclusion from YouTube.
- Frequency cap: A frequency cap of 5 or more, 1 per hour or 1 per day (for a campaign period of at least 5 days) can be set for the entire campaign against an index of 100. For caps of less than 5, an index of 115 applies.
- Control:
 - Audience: Ad Alliance uses contextual guidance and first-party data to determine the audience for campaigns. Content is analyzed using first-party data and contextual models to build demographic audiences. With users' consent, first-party data can be used for targeted advertising. Both methods are combined for optimal targeting, but cannot be combined with Theme management.
 - Theme: The theme pack is contextual and uses appropriate available content to create a cohesive pack. This package cannot be combined with target group management
 - Device targeting:
 - Computers: These are desktop or laptop devices with larger screens.
 - Mobile: These are portable devices that include a phone function, such as smartphones.
 - Tablet: Tablets are mobile devices with a larger screen than a smartphone, which usually do not have a phone function.
 - TV screens (big screen): These are devices that stream content, such as smart TVs, gaming consoles, and connected devices without a display like Chromecast and set-top boxes.
 - Ziggo Mediabox: Advertisements can be delivered via the Streaming TV or Ad Alliance Network Package on the Ziggo Mediabox, where users watch recordings of RTL4, RTL5, RTL7, RTL8 and RTL Z.
 - Geographic targeting: Campaigns can be delivered by default in the Netherlands, Flanders, and border areas in Germany. The border areas can be excluded free of charge on request. In addition, it is also possible to target against an index by province and city.

Addressable TV (ATV)

Live TV advertisements are overwritten at ATV by using technology in the Mediabox of VodafoneZiggo Group B.V. For the time being, ATV campaigns can only overwrite linear spots on the channels RTL4, RTL5, RTL7, RTL8 and RTL Z.

- Delivery: We strive to deliver ATV campaigns evenly until the end date. To ensure full delivery, we reserve the right to adjust settings to optimize the campaign. Please note that some unevenness in delivery may occur due to various factors, such as weather, viewing behavior in the evenings, live broadcasts or new popular programs. No guarantee is given for complete delivery.
- Hierarchy: Ad Alliance maintains a hierarchy when processing campaigns that prioritizes media contracts over non-contract clients.

- Spot length: When replacing a third-party linear campaign, the available video length options are 10, 15, or 20 seconds. This means that the new ad will overwrite another advertiser's existing ad with a video of exactly these lengths.
- Tag-on: Tag-on: A tag-on campaign, which is a short ad that airs immediately after the primary ad, is not allowed.
- Frequency cap: A frequency cap is only possible on request.
- Control: Ziggo's control options and systems are used when purchasing advertisements.
 - Target group: "VodafoneZiggo Group B.V. improves the targeting of ATV campaigns by using its own data, supplemented with public socio-demographic data from GeoMarktprofiel. This allows them to create customer profiles and show more targeted ads that better match personal preferences and interests. Advertisements can be targeted on the basis of household composition and income level, but it is not allowed to combine these control options."
For more information, please consult the official documentation of VodafoneZiggo Group B.V. or GeoMarktprofiel.
 - Device: ATV delivers advertisements via the VodafoneZiggo Group Bv Mediabox Next and Next mini.
 - Geographic targeting: Campaigns are delivered in the Netherlands. On request, campaigns can also be targeted to provinces or to customization.

Display

The most common standard display ad sizes are accepted. In addition, we have developed special Ad Alliance formats, which can be found in the rate card and the digital delivery specifications. The ad formats may differ per affiliated Publisher.

- Delivery: We strive to deliver display campaigns evenly until the end date. To ensure full delivery, we reserve the right to adjust settings to optimize the campaign. Please note that some unevenness in delivery may occur due to various factors, such as weather or new popular content on websites.
- Hierarchy: Ad Alliance uses a hierarchy when processing campaigns, where priority is determined based on the deal type chosen. Within each deal type, advertisers with a media contract are given priority over advertisers without a media contract. The hierarchy is as follows:
 - Direct Buying: Campaigns that are directly purchased have the highest priority.
 - Programmatic Direct: This includes two types of procurement:
 - Programmatic Guaranteed: Campaigns with guaranteed, reserved inventory.
 - Preferred Deals: Campaigns with unguaranteed, unreserved inventory.
 - Private Marketplace (PMP): Campaigns that participate in an auction model with price competition for selected advertisers.
 - The Open Market: falls outside this hierarchy and is based on price competition, with the highest bidder winning.
- Frequency cap: A frequency cap of 5 or more, 1 per hour or 1 per day (for a campaign period of at least 5 days) can be set for the entire campaign against an index of 100. For caps of less than 5, an index of 115 applies.
- Control:
 - Audience: Ad Alliance uses contextual guidance and first-party data to determine the audience for campaigns. Content is analyzed using first-party data or research to build demographic audiences. With users' consent, first-party data can be used for targeted advertising. Both methods are combined for optimal targeting, but cannot be combined with other control options such as theme or device control.
 - Theme: Theme management is contextual and uses all our content to put together a theme package. This can be applied at both the site level and the content level

- within a site. It is not possible to combine theme management with device, target group or interest management.
- Interest: Interest targeting uses personal data (PII) to target ads based on user interests, but only when the user has consented to this. The process involves obtaining consent, collecting and analyzing data, segmenting users based on interests, and targeting relevant ads to these segmented groups. It is not possible to combine interest management with device, target group or themasturing.
 - Device targeting:
 - Computers: These are desktop or laptop devices with larger screens. An ad server can determine this by analyzing the user agent string, which contains information about the type of device and the operating system.
 - Mobile: These are portable devices that include a phone function, such as smartphones.
 - Tablet: Tablets are mobile devices with a larger screen than a smartphone, which usually do not have a phone function.
 - Geographic targeting: Campaigns can be delivered by default in the Netherlands, Flanders, and border areas in Germany. The border areas can be excluded free of charge on request. In addition, it is also possible to target against an index by province and city.

- The campaign creation must be present at Ad Alliance for assessment at the same time as the application.
 - Surcharge: In the case of joint advertising, a surcharge index of 110 is calculated on the campaign CPM rate.
 - Assessment: Ad Alliance decides whether the advertisement is a joint advertisement and whether the advertiser has to pay a joint surcharge.
 - Identification: During the approval of the advertisement, it must be clear who the main advertiser is and by whom the advertising space has been requested.
